DID YOU KNOW?

Your child's improving language skills, combined with his increased attention span, makes sustained conversations possible at age three. And the more conversation, the better. Your modeling of good language skills is more important than ever. So no matter how your child constructs a sentence or creates new words, try to respond with proper grammar and vocabulary.

AT HOME CONNECTION

Good habits start young! Dental cavities are one of the most prevalent diseases among children. You and your child can spend some time each day brushing your teeth together. Sometimes a child will more effectively brush if someone else is with him or her. It is important for children to realize that they are the primary caretakers of their teeth! Have fun with your child! 😊
